

ABSTRACT

The present disclosure relates to a method, apparatus and system for scrambling of error and warning codes, or the like. Such method may be used for at least in part deterring fraud or enhancing the security of a system. Such a technique may include detecting an error, scrambling the error code resulting from the error, and making the scrambled error code known.